

New Life

A long time ago, a rich man flew in his private plane with autopilot; he was very happy and enjoyed the view. It was a beautiful day

But then he felt extremely shocked because the plane crashed in the air with a sudden loud noise. It fell into the sea and sank.

The man wanted to stay alive. He knew he had the power to swim to the broken half of the plane. This was the only chance for him to stay alive and he started to swim. But it was more exhausting than he thought it would be and he reached the air with his last energy. There was the lifeboat which he needed to find an island.

He navigated the lifeboat to the first island that he saw. He needed water - his mouth felt like dust. He looked around and saw a palm with beautiful coconuts.

He went to the palm, climbed up and threw the nuts down to the floor that the nuts would break. He saw that the nuts were open and he drank the milk of the coconuts immediately.

When the sunset came, the man felt cold.

He walked around the island to find wood that he could use for a campfire. He took some woods until he had to carry masses of wood. He wanted to make sure that it would be enough that the campfire would last the whole night. Then he went back to the boat and built a fire pitch. He used a lighter that he found in his pocket.

When the moon was on full rise he was very tired. He lay down and slept on the sand.

In the morning he woke up because something was picking him near his left ear. He saw it was a crab which would be an enjoyable breakfast and ate it.

But this crab was so bad, he wondered why? Then he remembered that he needed cook them. So he went along the island and took all the things he found to his place. He used them to build a lot of things. He made a little house, a bed, a knife, a little stock for food and more things he needed...

After a while a group of people found him and said:

"This is a new island which you found here you will get much money for this found"

So they brought him back to the city. For finding a new island he became a lot of money. From the money he bought an island near the city.

On this island he built a house of wood and sea grass.

The people said that he was silly because he had so much money and built only a house of wood and sea grass.

But the man was happy - it reminded him that he survived.
