

The Story of Aries

Aries was building a big castle for him and his wife Aphrodite to hide from Kratos the God of War because he had killed Aries' brother Deimos. One day when Aries was finished building, he was trying to think of some ways to defeat Kratos when all of a sudden, something crashed into his vineyard. As fast as a cheetah, Aries ran down his grand stairs into the garden. There was a note lying there and it said, "I know where you are and I am coming for you," signed Kratos. Aries rushed back to the castle, terrified for their lives. He grabbed Aphrodite's hand and told her it was time for her to go and leave him to fight Kratos on his own. Aphrodite ran away as quick as a flash. Aries hid until Kratos arrived. All of a sudden, a great big sword come through the window and there was a note attached, which said, "Come down, I need to talk," signed Kratos. Nervously, Aries crept down the stairs to see Kratos standing there with an axe and with an army. Aries stabbed Kratos through the heart and the army scattered. A blinding light came flying down from the sky. Aries was trying to figure out what it was, but he couldn't see because of the light. It was Zeus! He told Aries that he had to kill himself right there and then or all of the gods would chase him until death because he had killed the God of War Kratos. Aries told Zeus that Kratos had killed Aries' brother Deimos, but Zeus didn't care and stabbed Aries in the stomach.

By Will